DACHSER Korea strengthens presence in Korean market to meet growing customer demand

DACHSER Korea has been strengthening its presence in the Korea market with recent expansions of its offices in Seoul and Busan. With a total of 54 employees at three offices including Seoul, Busan, and in addition Incheon, the international logistics service provider is continuously developing its integrated worldwide supply chain solutions.

Expanding the location in Seoul on an additional floor provides more room for the growing team. The modern facilities enable DACHSER to accommodate its broader personnel structure providing enhanced logistics processes in response to the growing demand of its customers for complex supply chain solutions.

In Busan, the DACHSER team has been constantly growing to meet customers' needs on economically relevant trade lanes; Busan connects Asia, Europe and the Americas, serving as an important logistics center in worldwide trade.

"The new and larger offices are our answer to the extraordinary growth in this country. Staff and customers expect fast and targeted feedback, paired with extra services which go beyond the standard solution," said Roman Mueller, Managing Director Air & Sea Logistics Korea. "The combination of our forward-thinking and innovative customer solutions, coupled with the high working pace and going the extra-mile attitude of our team, make DACHSER Korea a strong partner for Korea-based multinational companies," he added.

With its global logistics network and integrated IT solutions, DACHSER strives to offer the world's most intelligent combination and integration of logistical network services. Moving forward, DACHSER Korea will continue to enhance and expand services for its diverse customer base, offering not only air and sea freight services but also contract logistics and warehousing, intra-Asia services, customs clearance as well as industry-specific solutions.
