

Network Airline Management Confirms Renewal of Long-Term Boeing 747-400 Freighter Lease with TAAG Angola Airlines

Network Airline Management and TAAG Angola Airlines—the national airline of Angola—have renewed their long-term freighter aircraft contract.

The Boeing 747-400F factory-built freighter with nose door— operated by Network Airline Management—carries up to 120,000 kilos of oil-related and general cargo and continues its weekly scheduled service from Liege, Belgium, to Luanda.

The agreement offers export capacity from Angola back to Europe with forwarding connections worldwide and trucking connections from all over Europe into the Liege hub, as well as interlining facilities from North America, Asia and the Indian sub-continent.

Andy Walters, Commercial Director, said: “We are delighted that TAAG has renewed our contract. I am confident that our strong focus on service quality and value-added solutions have been a significant factor and we are looking forward to continuing our long and successful partnership.”
