

United Cargo Named XLA International and Domestic Airline of the Year

Chicago, March 28, 2012

United Cargo is proud to announce we have achieved a rare double victory: winning both the 2011 International Airline of the Year award and the 2011 Domestic Airline of the Year award from the Express Delivery & Logistics Association (XLA).

The XLA is a non-profit trade association representing the express delivery, mail and logistics industry. Each year, XLA members evaluate airlines' performance in several customer-focused categories: communication, service, website, technology and overall value. Subsidiary Continental Cargo was recognized for outstanding performance in both international and domestic areas. We are pleased to note a trend is developing: subsidiary United Cargo received the 2010 International Airline of the Year award.

"All United Cargo co-workers take great pride in this recognition," said Robbie Anderson, President of United Cargo. "While we worked very hard in 2011 to complete our integration into the world's leading carrier, our primary goal was ensuring we kept our commitments to our customers every day. We view these awards as confirmation that we maintained our focus and delivered the levels of service excellence our customers expect and deserve."

United Cargo's awards were presented at the XLA's AirCargo 2012 Membership Conference in Miami.
