Swissport Cargo leads the way with mobile track & trace service

Zurich, 13th April 2012 - Swissport International, the world's leading provider of air cargo handling services, has become the first global independent handler to provide an advanced track-and-trace service for cargo customers and other partners via their mobile phones.

Swissport's successful and industry-leading Freightfinder track-and-trace service has been available for several years via the main internet browsers, and the company has now developed a mobile version of Freightfinder that will make it possible for customers and partners to check the status of shipments from their smartphone or tablet. It is available for the iPhone and iPad, BlackBerry, and all mobile phones or tablets using the Android operating system, meaning it can be accessed via the vast majority of smartphones worldwide.

John Batten, Executive Vice President of Global Cargo at Swissport International, commented: "This kind of technology is otherwise only available to one or two of the leading major global airlines, and so our ability to offer this kind of service to any of our airline customers and partners is further evidence of the value customers receive from outsourcing to the leading global specialist cargo handler, Swissport. This is a really useful innovation that is giving us a nice competitive advantage, demonstrating the value of our ability as a large, well-backed organisation to invest in innovation and new technology and lead the field in professionalising the air cargo handling sector."

The Freightfinder mobile track-and-trace service is available without the need for downloads or updates. Customers can simply go to <http://www.freightfinder-swissport.com/mobile.aspx> and add the Swissport icon to their mobile device, and the service works straight away.

Swissport International Ltd provides ground services for around 108 million passengers and 3.2 million tonnes of cargo a year (the latter using 98 warehouses with a total floor area of over 350,000 square metres) on behalf of some 650 client-companies in the aviation sector. With a workforce of around 35,000 personnel, Swissport is active at 177 stations in 36 countries on five continents, and generated consolidated operating revenue of CHF 1.7 billion in 2011. www.swissport.com
