

UPS EXPANDS UPS WORLDWIDE EXPRESS™ SERVICE

EARLIER ON-TIME DELIVERY OPTIONS FOR MORE THAN 41,000 NEW POSTAL CODES GLOBALLY

- Largest one-time expansion of the service in its history
- UPS Worldwide Express service is available in 65 countries that comprise 91% of global GDP

London, Oct. 16, 2015 – UPS (NYSE:UPS) is expanding its UPS Worldwide Express™ service to more than 41,000 new postal codes around the world, including nearly 15,000 post codes in Europe and 1371 post codes in the UK, creating earlier money back guaranteed-delivery options for customers who previously had only end-of-day money back guarantee delivery options. UPS already delivers more packages internationally and offers more money back guaranteed small-package delivery options than any other integrated logistics company.

Starting Oct. 19, UPS Worldwide Express service will be available in all of the new post codes. This is the largest one-time expansion of the service in its history.

The service is part of the UPS Express® portfolio, which offers three money back guaranteed time-of-day delivery options that include customs clearance. The UPS Express portfolio features:

- UPS Express Plus for early-morning delivery to 27 countries, including the UK
- UPS Express® for midday delivery to 65 countries, including the UK
- UPS Express Saver® for end-of-day delivery to 220 countries and territories

UPS Worldwide Express service offers money back guaranteed delivery on the next possible business day by 10:30 a.m., noon or 2:00 p.m. depending on the destination. Individuals and companies of all sizes can use the service, but it is particularly beneficial to those with time-sensitive international shipments. UPS Worldwide Express service is available in 65 countries, including the UK, comprise 91% of the global gross domestic product.

Companies in the high-tech, retail and industrial manufacturing industries are the biggest users of UPS Worldwide Express shipping. High-tech companies, for example, operate in a particularly fast-paced environment with little to no downtime between product generations. UPS Worldwide Express service gives companies like these greater ability to keep their manufacturing and distribution processes moving at the speeds they require.

“We are pleased to expand the global footprint of UPS Worldwide Express in Europe, in important trade lanes like Asia and around the world,” said Scott Aubuchon, vice president of marketing at UPS Europe. “As international trade continues to grow and supply chains become increasingly global, European businesses need money back guaranteed time-of-day delivery options they can count on. Their success, in turn, drives their commerce with other European countries and the rest of the world, which creates European jobs.”

Cross-border trade is on track to increase around the world. The World Trade Organization predicts a 3.3% increase in world merchandise trade in 2015 and a 4% increase in 2016.

The majority of the new destination postal codes are in Asia Pacific. In Europe and Canada, UPS is further expanding its already broad coverage, while the new post codes in Latin America, the Indian Sub-continent, the Middle East and Africa will grow UPS’s footprint in these burgeoning regions.

The expansion of UPS Worldwide Express service to additional postal codes helps facilitate growth in international trade by giving customers an even larger money back guaranteed coverage area for urgent deliveries. The earlier delivery option offered with the UPS Worldwide Express service allows shippers to get more things done and keep their businesses moving. This service, along with other UPS offerings, also supports the fast rise of cross-border e-commerce in Europe.
